

OPEN HEARINGS ON MCCARTHY-ARMY FEUD

About Town

And Country

By TIMOTHEUS T.

THIS AND THAT: A man noted for his tightness went in Western Union the other day to send a telegram to his wife. He was told that there would be no charge for the name; so he put down his pencil and said: "I may not look it, but I'm an Indian, and my name is 'I-Won't-Be-Home-Until-Saturday-Night.'"

And here are some typographical errors and just plain errors that have appeared in our country's periodicals the past month:

"Inspiring carols and anthems of many nations will be sung by the Sanctuary choir."

"He was charged with distributing the peace."

"But she went just as she had wanted to—quickly, quietly, serenely, without fuss or confusion, in possession of all her faculties."

"Home-made sock best for Santa."

Betcha didn't know that a drink of ice water could lead to the sale of door chimes? I didn't either, but I read in a magazine that in a Dallas, Texas, appliance store, many a man has stooped to drink from a water fountain in the store and raised his head with an irresistible urge to try out the door chimes, which are strategically placed on the wall all around the fountain.

If you see good in everybody you may be an optimist. And then again you may be nuts.

Took a drive the other day down Route 34 to Mitchellville and noticed that the buildings on the right where the Mitchellville-to-Dixon Springs road joins Route 34 have been moved "way back to provide needed right-of-way for the connection."

And Sunday I went down Route 45 to Vienna. It's a remarkable piece of road work they're doing on this side of Vienna, remaking the highway and cutting out lots of the bad hills and curves.

Joe "Mirror Man" Pierson's Paw Paws are blooming again behind the Harrisburg funeral home which is a bit of the unusual uptown. But more unusual is that pecan tree of his nearby. This tree, which was planted as a pecan tree, is having walnuts again, I presume.

I guess it's the only pecan tree in the country that has walnuts.

Reminds me of my first big garden about nine years ago. I sowed a row of carrot seeds and right next to it I sowed a row of parsnips.

Believe it or not, in a few days little green things started coming up through the earth.

At first my row of carrots and my row of parsnips looked alike. Then later they looked alike and the tops were getting pretty good sized.

I didn't know that carrot and parsnips looked so much alike, I told my neighbors.

They grew and grew and the first thing I knew I had some pretty good carrots in my carrot row. And in my parsnip row I also had some pretty good carrots.

Barcus-Kindred Explains Action On Lake Bonds

Horning, Thompson Advised Options, Deeds Must Be Put in Escrow

The mayor and the city attorney, who went to Chicago to seek the score on what the bond firm of Barcus-Kindred intends to do on the purchase of bonds for Lake Harrisburg, have returned home.

Mayor Ralph Horning and City Attorney Searles Thompson made the trip, conferring for two hours yesterday with Paul Cutler. Cutler is a member of the law firm, Chapman and Cutler, which advises bond firms on procedures to follow, and the bond firms follow this advice pretty carefully.

Reason the two went was because the city was informed that Chapman and Cutler had advised Barcus-Kindred to buy only $51,000 in bonds now for the purchase of lake acreage, when the city had been told earlier that it could get around $69,000.

"They insist," Horning told a Daily Register reporter, "that we must get up everyone of the options and deeds and put them in escrow. They will send the money down and it, too, will be placed in escrow in a bank."

To Determine Exact Acreage

"The idea of this," he explained, "is that a simultaneous deal be made which includes all the acreage the city intends to buy for the lake. They don't want the city to be buying it up parcel by parcel with the bond money."

Horning said that he today intends to get with Ralph Brown, lake engineer, to try to determine the exact number of acres needed and get the descriptions of this exact acreage so that it can be sent to Barcus-Kindred. He estimated that it would be between 30 and 60 days before all the information required by Barcus-Kindred could be assembled and the money obtained.

"They'll pay off $50,000 of the bond issue when we give them all the exact information and have all the options and deeds collected," Horning stated. "I know we have an agreement with Barcus-Kindred which says that they would let us have $69,000 but now they're saying they were all wrong and that around $50,000 will be the figure. However, they say they'll look over the audit again."

Father of Three Children Faces Army Induction

ROCKFORD (AP)—A 28-year-old father of three small children was inducted into the Army next Monday because he was two days late in notifying the draft board of his dependents.

Melvin C. Roggensack, who works as an automatic saw operator in a machine tool plant, said he received notice last week that he must report for the draft on April 26.

He formerly was classified as 4F because of defective vision. Last October, he said, he read in a paper that all registrants must report the number of their dependents by Oct. 26.

"I went to my board on that day, and they told me I was two days too late," he said. "They said the deadline was Oct. 24."

Roggensack assumed at the time that the board would automatically enter an appeal for him to change his draft status into one giving him deferment by reason of his dependents.

Consequently, he never asked the help of the local appeals agent, Atty. A. C. Essington, or his deputy, John Sype.

Essington said today that it is now too late for Roggensack to make an appeal locally.

"I didn't know about the case until I read about it in the newspaper," Essington said. "I can't take any action once a man has received notice of induction. His only hope now is to appeal to the state draft director."

State selective service headquarters at Chicago said, however, that no appeal had yet been made to State Director Paul Armstrong on Roggensack's behalf.

Roggensack and his 26-year-old wife, Muriel, are the parents of Sharon Kay, 5 months, Ronald Eugene, 2, and Melvin Merle, 3.

Saline County Taxpayers Find 16 Per Cent Increase in 1954 Taxes

Saline county taxpayers who have received their tax bills have found an increase of 16 per cent in their taxes for 1954 over 1953.

Many have been protesting to County Treasurer Paul Hilliard, but the only answer his office can give is that the collector only collects amounts extended on the books, and does not make the levies.

Levies are made by various taxing bodies. There are 22 separate rates this year for persons who have property located in Harrisburg township in school district 43.

After levies are made, the office of County Clerk Don Garrison extends the taxes on the basis of assessments made by various assessors and adjustments made by the board of review in some instances. Then the books are turned over to Collector Hilliard.

The various rates for Harrisburg township in school district 43 this year total $3.38 per $100 valuation.

This is in contrast to $2.91 for 1953. Rates in other townships and school districts vary according to levies.

The increase of 47 cents per $100 assessed valuation this year is caused by various factors. There have been four new rates added for county judgment, elections and registration, sheriff's highway patrol and veterans' assistance, totaling nine cents per $100 valuation. Increases in seven rates totaled 38 and one-tenth cents and there was one decrease of one-tenth of one cent in the blind pension bond fund.

Increases included one-tenth cent for county refunding bonds, nine-tenths of one cent for Harrisburg township general, eight-tenths of one cent for Harrisburg township improved road, 12 cents for Harrisburg city, including a new addition for employment fund, three-tenths of one cent for the airport, ten cents for the high school and 14 cents for the city schools. County refunding bond No. 2 will be paid out in 1960, No. 3 in 1962.

The county judgment levy, new this year, will be for one year only. It is to take care of the judgment paid by the county in the death of Deputy Sheriff Harrison Dunning, fatally injured in an automobile crash while taking a prisoner to an institution.

The other three new levies, the elections and registration, sheriff's highway patrol and veterans assistance, are designed to take care of expenses in the categories whereby they get their names and were levied by the county board under legislation passed by the last General Assembly.

In the above table, The Register has calculated the amounts extended for each levy on a house valued at $4,000. On this basis, the total this year would be $135.20 in comparison to $116.40 for 1953.

On the $4,000 house, it will be noted the tax for educational purposes totals $78.00 of the total of $135.20, or nearly half. This includes funds levied for educational purposes, for upkeep of school buildings and for regular payments on the bonded indebtedness of the high school and city school districts, totaling roughly a million dollars.

Three Suits In County Court Ask $62,500 Damages

Eldorado attorneys yesterday filed three lawsuits in circuit court which ask a total of $62,500 damages.

Two resulted from collisions, the other from an uptown sidewalk accident, according to the complaints.

Nora F. Handwright, in a complaint filed for her by Atty. Harry J. Flanders and Atty. Robert V. Wilson, asks $50,000 from Louis and Lester Eply, declaring she was badly injured in a crash May 4, 1952. Her complaint says she was a passenger in a car driven by A. C. Unfried which figured in a collision with a car owned by Lester and driven by Louis Eply on Route 142 three-fourths of a mile from Eldorado.

Wilson filed a complaint for Mabel Sanders against Otis Mitchell, Dewell Devoe and C. E. Weldon asking for $25,000 damages to her automobile as the result of a crash on Route 45 near Muddy Jan. 17, 1953.

The complaint names Devoe and Weldon as owners of the Argos Collier Truck lines and Mitchell as the driver at the time of the crash of Mrs. Sanders' car and a tractor and trailer.

Agnes Wood asks for $10,000 damages from Hiram Sutton, doing business as the Sutton Electric Co., declaring she was badly injured when she walked into an awning that extended from the electric shop over part of the sidewalk at 922 Fourth street in Eldorado. Her head struck the metal framework, her complaint declares.

The suit was filed by Flanders and Wilson.

Methodists to Abandon Present Church Building

Sunday Morning Service Will Be Held At Orpheum Theatre

Members of the official board of the First Methodist church voted unanimously in a special meeting last night to abandon the present church building after more recent reports from structural engineers described the building as unsafe.

Commencing Sunday, the congregation will hold its morning worship service in the Orpheum theatre.

The actual building construction which got underway a week ago Monday with the razing of Wesley Center was to have continued this week with the north section of the church building being torn off to allow clearance for the new educational building—a portion of the new structure.

Church members anticipated the continued use of the main sanctuary for several months. However, Mr. Topping, of St. Louis, structural engineer and special consultant to the Evans Construction company of St. Louis, general contractors for the building program, reported the entire church as unsafe and risky for large gatherings after a thorough investigation. His report was relayed to the Rev. W. L. Cummins and the building committee early Tuesday morning.

The Evans Construction company stated that should the congregation desire to continue worship in the church building, four large column supports should be placed outside the building immediately.

State Deputy Fire Chief Dove Robinson, of Eldorado, was present at the meeting last night. The state, he said, was not condemning the building for use, although he agreed that many of the hazards pointed out by the engineers and the Rev. Cummins were apparent. Local Fire Chief Ray Johnson also gave concurring remarks.

The official board, after hearing these latest reports and with a view to the safety of the congregation and the necessity of tearing down the entire church building within the year, voted to abandon the church.

Harry Horning headed a group which immediately contacted the management of the Orpheum theatre, and permission was graciously granted the congregation to hold its Sunday morning worship services there. Sunday school will continue to be held in Horace Mann school building where it has been conducted for the past two Sundays.

To Announce Other Services

Evans Construction company has agreed to focus attention on the completion of the sanctuary section of the new building and expects to complete it prior to the winter months next fall.

No definite plans were made yet today for Sunday evening or mid-week prayer services. The Rev. Cummins stated that these services would be held, and an announcement concerning them made within the next few days.

With the swift action of the board clearing the way, workmen had already moved into the church building today, removing the contents to other locations for storage.

The organ will be moved and stored. Rev. Cummins said that some of the pews would be sold but that otherwise the majority of the items were headed for storage.

The Wesley Center building has been completely torn down and removed from the premises.

The Southern Illinois Dinner club, which will meet at the Kurto Country club Thursday evening, April 29, will have as its guest speaker, George Bailey, who is a past master of entertainment and the possessor of one of the outstanding memories of the United States.

The dinner meeting will begin at 6:30 p. m. and advance reservations should be made with Rees Turner, club secretary.

Mr. Bailey, the gospel of good humor, will present a program which will include everything. Though it has other facets, his program is largely based on two factors: his tremendous memory and the fact that he is able to get music out of a nondescript collection of musical glasses which have been fitted with resonators which import an organ-like effect to their tones.

He is no mere variety performer, but one who has perfected his techniques and prepared for his work on the platform while at Bucknell.

His entertainment is sheer escapism. He leaves all the weighty problems of the world to those more able and willing to discuss

Soviet Secret Agent, Two German Assistants on Murder Mission Ask Asylum

BONN (AP)—A Russian secret police agent told today of a Kremlin-inspired plot in which he and two companions were armed with electrically-fired guns and poison pellets and assigned to assassinate an anti-Red leader in West Germany.

The Russian, MVD Capt. Nikolai E. Khokhlov, and his two Communist East German assistants, rendered to U.S. authorities, turned over their specially-designed assassin's weapons, and requested political asylum.

At a special press conference, arranged under a screen of secrecy by the U. S. High Commission for Germany, Khokhlov said he rejected Moscow's orders to kill Georgi S. Okolovich because "I couldn't bring myself to commit murder." Okolovich is a leader of the anti-Communist NTS, a Russian refugee organization.

On display for the reporters who packed the conference room were the assassination weapons—two specially silenced, electrically-fired pistols and two bizarre "cigarette case" guns which fired poisoned pellets of potassium cyanide at the touch of a button.

An American official described them as "unique, and unlike anything ever seen outside Russia."

The official explained the guns fired soft dum-dum type bullets containing the potassium cyanide. They make no noise and are triggered by a tiny electric battery.

Khokhlov said he was assigned to the murder mission in Moscow. He said he was sent out from Moscow in October, 1953, under orders to assassinate Georgi S. Okolovich, a leader of the NTS (an anti-Communist Russian refugee organization) in West Germany.

American intelligence agents said they had carefully investigated every detail of the story told by the three and were "completely satisfied" as to its accuracy.

Assistants Trained

The two German agents identified themselves as Hans Kufowitsch and Kurt Weber. Khokhlov said the assassination plan was titled "Operation Rhine" in the secret files of the MVD. He said plans for the assassination of Okolovich were carefully worked out before he "recruited" his two German assistants in the Soviet zone of Germany. The two Germans, he said, were taken to Moscow and given special training for their murder assignment.

They were instructed in judo, use of side arms and in automobile driving, he said. They were supplied with maps showing Frankfurt—where Okolovich was located—in minute detail, pictures of their victim and descriptions of his habits.

On Dec. 19, 1953, the Russian said, the three were flown out of Moscow to Berlin to begin their mission.

A U. S. High Commission spokesman showed reporters special "poison pellets" and "specialized pistols" which were supplied to the assassins in Moscow.

"They were made by experts," the American official explained.

On Jan. 15, Khokhlov said, Moscow ordered the assassination postponed because Russia did not want the death to occur in Germany during the Big Four foreign ministers' conference in Berlin.

After hiding out first in Vienna and later in Zurich, Khokhlov said he began to have doubts about his mission. On Feb. 18 the MVD agent went to Okolovich's apartment in Frankfurt and told the intended victim of the plot against his life.

Then Khokhlov arranged a meeting with American intelligence agents and asked for asylum. He persuaded his German assistants to join him in renouncing communism.

Officer Tells Of Pressure by Senator, Cohn

Maj. Gen. Reber Tells of Attempts to Get Schine Commission

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maj. Gen. Miles W. Reber testified today that Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and Roy M. Cohn exerted great pressure on him to try to get a speedy Army commission for G. David Schine last summer.

"I recall no instance in which I have been put under greater pressure" in 10 years of dealing with senators, Reber testified.

Reber said he was not "intimidated" by Cohn or McCarthy and did not consider the calls "improper effort."

But if there had not been so many calls, he said, "I don't believe frankly I'd have moved quite so fast" in efforts—which were futile—to help Schine, unpaid chief consultant to the investigating subcommittee of which McCarthy is chairman. He did not qualify for a commission and later was drafted. He is still a private.

Hearing Room Jammed

Reber, former Army liaison officer with Congress, was the first witness in the subcommittee's public hearings on the months-old feud between McCarthy and the Army. The Army has accused the senator and Cohn, his subcommittee chief counsel, with trying improperly to get special treatment for Schine.

The general, now commanding general of the U. S. Western European Army, served 10 years as a military liaison officer with Congress.

The hearings opened before television cameras in the Senate's biggest hearing room which was jammed. The main issue is the Army's charge that McCarthy and Cohn tried to get preferential treatment for Schine, former subcommittee aide, before and after he was drafted.

To Return for Cross-Examination

McCarthy and Cohn have counter-charged the Army used Schine as a "hostage" to "blackmail" them into calling off investigation of alleged communism in the Army.

The first session started at 9:32 a. m. CST and recessed at 11:44 a. m. until 1:30 p. m. CST when Reber will return to the stand for cross-examination by Cohn.

When it was McCarthy's turn to question Reber during the morning session, the senator charged Reber showed "bias and prejudice" because Reber's brother had a

Williamson Mine Closed to Comply With Safety Laws

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A Williamson county coal mine has shut down to take steps to comply with state safety laws.

Murrel Reak, assistant director of the State Mines and Minerals Department, said the Freeman Coal Mining Corp. mine No. 4 was closed Tuesday after a state inspection.

Reak said mine inspector Mike Sciranko, Benton, found the company was failing to make regular examinations of certain abandoned territory in the mine as the law required.

He ordered the company to comply with this requirement. Reak said the company decided instead that it would seal off some abandoned territory and the mine will be closed while this is done.

The company estimated the work will take a week or 10 days, Reak said. The mine employs about 160 men.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: McCarthy Didn't Want Las Vegas Sun Publisher Indicted; Las Vegas Newspaper's Highly Labeled And Damaging Charges Are Now Part Of Libelproof Court Record; Ike Promises To Support Benson On Support.

WASHINGTON. — The inside story of how the Eisenhower administration indicted a Las Vegas publisher at the behest of Joe McCarthy is one of the most amazing Washington has seen in a long time.

The real fact is that McCarthy actually didn't want the publisher prosecuted. Certain Justice Department officials pushed the action despite him and probably to embarrass him.

What happened was that Hank Greenspun, the editor and publisher of the Las Vegas Sun, wrote a column on January 8 that "Joe has come to a violent end. Live by the sword and you die by the sword!" Greenspun continued: "Destroy people and they in turn must destroy you."

McCarthy sent a copy of this column to Postmaster General Summerfield as a move to take second-class mailing privileges from the Las Vegas Sun. That apparently was as far as he wanted to go. Obviously if he had wanted criminal prosecution he would have sent the column direct to the Justice Department to which he has referred various other matters in the past.

JOE'S FRIEND

McCarthy happens to be chairman of the Senate subcommittee for post office appropriations, thus has a powerful hold on Summerfield. Once before they put their heads together to embarrass another McCarthy critic—Henry Luce of Time, Life and Fortune—when Summerfield furnished McCarthy under-the-table figures on Luce's profits and McCarthy proceeded to build a fire against the magazine's second-class mailing privileges.

Furthermore, Summerfield has been one of Joe's consistent friends inside the cabinet and was the man who, during the election campaign, took Joe up the service elevator of the Pere Marquette hotel in Peoria, Ill., to persuade Eisenhower to drop any praise of General Marshall from his Milwaukee speech.

However, when Attorney General

Brownell heard about McCarthy's hedging or playing dumb. He had been immersed in the Indochinese problem for several weeks, and had discussed the possible use of U. S. troops in Indochina so many times in Security Council circles that he didn't realize the impact it would make on editors and the American public generally.

Chief significance is that the use of troops, if necessary, has been decided as a matter of definite Eisenhower policy; furthermore, was decided some time ago.

BENSON WON'T BUDGE

While public debate over rigid price supports continues on the Senate floor, here are some of the things that have been happening off the floor in Senate cloakrooms.

President Eisenhower has passed word through his close friend, Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, that he might agree to a one-year extension of rigid price supports. This would be an acceptable compromise to Sen. Milt Young of North Dakota, Republican, and Sen. Allen Ellender of Louisiana, Democrat, the two leaders of the farm bloc who are pushing hardest for rigid price supports.

However, it is not acceptable to Sen. Dick Russell of Georgia, the potent southern leader. Russell says farm price supports must be extended for two years, not one. He argues that farmers must have continuity of crop-planing, must be able to plan for more than a year in advance.

However, whether it's a one-year or a two-year extension, either will definitely be unacceptable to Ezra Taft Benson, the sincere, sometimes stubborn, secretary of agriculture. Benson just won't budge on rigid farm price supports—whether it be one year, two years, or six months.

He's just again 'em. And though he hasn't said so, the chances are he would resign from the cabinet if the President failed to back him up.

So far the President shows no sign of deserting Benson. On the contrary, he has promised Ezra to get on the telephone personally to various senators to swing them in line against the amendment laden wool bill extending price supports.

ILLINOIS FIRMS ON 'SUSPECT' LIST FOR FHA IRREGULARITIES

CHICAGO. — The names of more than 150 Illinois contractors and promoters have been placed on a "precautionary list"—indicating possible irregularities in handling home repair jobs—by the Federal Housing Administration, an FHA official said today.

James C. Moreland, director of the FHA Chicago district, said the Illinois firms were part of a "blacklist" of suspect companies mentioned Wednesday in Washington during a Senate investigation of alleged FHA scandals.

He said at least 125 of the Illinois firms on the "precautionary list" were located in Chicago.

Moreland said the list has been sent to banks and other lenders who make loans for home repair. The lenders, he said, are not forbidden to deal with the listed firms but the FHA will not insure the loans.

Moreland said that some of the promoters on the list have victimized home owners by "selling" FHA loans for unneeded repairs and superfluous items like barbecue pits and burglar alarms.

He said some of the work was overpriced and faulty and added that some of the firms pocketed high commissions by subcontracting the work.

Wilson Says U. S. Defense Will Deter Major War

Secretary Makes First Report On 'New Look' Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said Wednesday night the administration's "new look" defense policy is designed to "deter both a major war and local aggression."

In his first semi-annual report since adoption of the "new look", Wilson served blunt warning to would-be aggressors that "the mounting retaliatory capability of our air units gives full warning to any aggressor of the possible consequences of rash actions on his part."

He added that this country's decision to keep substantial forces of all types readily available and to expand its continental air defense system should destroy an aggressor's chances for "a quick and easy victory."

Wilson's report, with accompanying statements by the Army, Navy and Air secretaries, was sent to President Eisenhower to be forwarded to Congress. It covered the six months which ended last Dec. 31.

Must Have Trained Reserves

Wilson said his defense economies are producing "increased strength at reduced cost." But he said he was "not satisfied" on one point—the status of reserve forces—and pledged big improvements here.

The defense secretary said that since the United States itself would be a target in any new war, trained reserve forces must be ready for immediate action and "not nine to twelve months later."

Air Secretary Harold G. Talbot, whose service became dominant under the new look, said the "review of national strategy confirmed previous appraisals of the key position of airpower in our national defense structure."

There has been some criticism in Congress — particularly by Democrats — that the new look, with its emphasis on air-atomic power, might not be sufficiently flexible to deal with small "brush fire" wars.

Wilson said U. S. military policy is tailored to cope with both big and small wars.

Tips on Traffic Safety

By CHARLES F. CARPENTIER, Secretary of State

This year's new spring styles may be very interesting, but however much you want a new hat or sport shirt, don't do your window-shopping while driving your car. If you do, your costume may consist principally of a plaster cast and gauze.

Park your car and do the window-shopping on foot. You'll see more than the merchant has to offer, and you won't have to include new fenders or insurance policies on your shopping list.

Charles Valentine Riley, one of the first economic entomologists of America, was awarded the Cross of the Legion of Honor by France for a suggestion. French grapevines had been ruined by an insect, and Riley suggested that they be replaced with American vines that were hardened to its attacks.

Show of Strength Best Way to Prevent War III, Nixon Says

DES MOINES, Iowa (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Wednesday night that a show of strength in Asia was America's best bet to prevent World War III.

He said, however, that American material aid could be made to serve as a substitute for American troops in Indochina.

Nixon spoke at a $25-a-plate Republican dinner here.

Nixon spelled out administration policy when he said, "American policy is to give maximum material aid to the forces of the French and associated states (of Indochina)."

He said the United States must give such aid to "avoid sending our boys" into the battle in Indochina.

Nixon told about 3,800 persons at the Iowa GOP centennial dinner that the Communists are out to conquer the world, and if they should take Indochina "it would swing the balance of power to the Communists."

According to ancient belief, the entrance to the infernal regions was Avernus, a volcanic crater lake near Naples, Italy.

Richards and Dunn left at last, and Mark sent the two officers who had helped in the search to Mansfield's apartment to lend those searching there a hand.

"Personally," Mark said, "I could use a breakfast now. I know Joan will have something ready."

"Suits me," Jim agreed. "Tell me a little more about this Vern Bruce. Just another of Colorado City's odd characters?"

Mark Richards chuckled. "You'll notice I didn't want to rile him? He's been bothered, in the past, and by our local experts. A few years ago it even got as far as the courts. There was an attempt made to have him certified—declared insane or at least incompetent. Bruce really had a time for himself then. It was pitiful. Anyway when he got through with them, the psychiatrists were lucky not to be certified themselves. And the story goes one of them gave up practice and opened a trout farm. Vern Bruce doesn't have much trouble any more."

After a full breakfast, Mark went off to check on Nash's story, and Joan discreetly removed herself to another part of the Drover house.

Nancy and Jim sat stiffly side by side on the davenport. Nancy spoke of what was on her mind at last. "The funeral, Jim. You know it's this afternoon?"

"Yes, Three o'clock." "I'm counting on you, Jim. I feel as if I were going to fly into a million pieces, Jim, you'll be there with me, won't you?"

"Of course I will." She tried a smile. "Don't even tell me I'm being silly, Jim. I just have to know you'll be there. And I'll probably ask for reassurance within the next five minutes. But now, let's talk about something else, anything else. To keep me from thinking."

"Let's see. How would this do for a subject? Did you happen to see a school play that was written and produced by young Tony Hughes?"

"Yes. Of course I did. As a social affair." Nancy actually smiled. "Quite a thing, that play. All about fairies, and wishes coming true. But oh, so disillusioned and bitter."

"Wonder if you'd know where I could get hold of a copy of that play?"

She looked at him curiously, but did not ask his reasons. She went to the phone, dialed a number, and talked for a while in a low voice. "All fixed," she said on her return. "I talked to the principal of the high school. He'll loan you a copy."

She looked at him curiously, but did not ask his reasons. She went to the phone, dialed a number, and talked for a while in a low voice. "All fixed," she said on her return. "I talked to the principal of the high school. He'll loan you a copy."

"Old enough," Mary Holt said dryly. "A little younger than I." Only then did she ask the obvious question. "By the way, what has our Gaylord been up to now?"

"Mansfield got himself shot this morning," Jim said.

"Killed?"

"Critical, but he was still alive the last I heard."

"Too bad," Mary Holt said. "Too bad about his getting shot. She smiled grimly and added, "Too bad it didn't happen 50 years ago."

Senator McCarthy Charges Plot to End Investigations

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), in an address on Texas' independence day, said he believes "devilishly clever" men are plotting to end his investigations of communism.

McCarthy flew back to Washington Wednesday night to be on hand for opening hearings into charges by the Army that he and his chief counsel, Roy Cohn, used improper pressure to obtain special treatment for drafted McCarthy aide G. David Schim.

The senator told of his fears of the plot Wednesday before 7,500 Texans gathered to observe San Jacinto Day at the San Jacinto battlefield just south of where the decisive battle of Texas' war with Mexico was fought in 1836.

"The plan is to shift and change the rules" of the McCarthy committee

J. Edgar Hoover Receives DAR Award of Merit

WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said today that "pseudo liberals" may do more to further the Communist cause in this country than the Communists themselves.

In a speech accepting an award of merit from the 63rd congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Hoover said "otherwise respectable, seemingly intelligent persons, perhaps unknowingly aid the Communist cause more effectively than the Communists themselves."

"The pseudo-liberal can be more destructive than the known Communist because of the esteem which his cloak of respectability invites," he said.

He said the FBI has been subject to "taunts, insults, and destructive criticism" for years.

He said the DAR also has been "the target of vile and vicious attacks," along with "all other patriotic organizations and... every other person who has dared to raise his voice."

He congratulated the DAR for having "recognized the true nature of communism... long before the general public" and said DAR members "have time and again rendered assistance of the highest order to the FBI."

POW Admission Of Collaboration Given Court Martial

WASHINGTON (AP)—An Army court martial has received an admission by Cpl. Edward S. Dickenson that he collaborated with Communist captors in a Korean prison camp.

The statement, taken by Army intelligence officers in Tokyo after Dickenson's belated repatriation, was admitted as evidence late Wednesday over vigorous protests of defense counsel.

In it, Dickenson said he decided to go along with the Communists after being caught in an escape attempt and being subjected to cruel and brutal treatment.

He admitted writing articles for Communist newspapers, making recordings and signing and circulating peace petitions among fellow prisoners. It did not include anything about informing on fellow prisoners, also charged by the Army.

He said some prisoners who accepted Communism were sent home to form the nucleus of a revolutionary group. He said they were instructed to meet in Chicago, at a time to be set later, to lay plans for a revolution to be staged after a depression which the Communists predicted would come in five years.

Dickenson, a Crackers Neck, Va., mountaineer, was one of two original non-repatriates who came home after the mass exchange of prisoners. The other was Cpl. Claude J. Batchelor of Kermit, Tex., who also is slated for court martial. Twenty-one other Americans remained with the Reds.

Needs Consent

The ruler of England cannot abdicate the throne without the consent of both houses of Parliament. The Abdication Bill, ending the reign of Edward VIII, was passed on Dec. 11, 1936.

THREE FORESTERS, REPRESENTING THE GOVERNMENT OF TURKEY, Wednesday completed a tour of area forest products using industries and the forestry experimental work of the Carbondale U. S. Forest Research Center on the Southern Illinois university campus before moving on to the Shawnee National Forest office in Harrisburg for additional observation of forestry practices in southern Illinois.

Gathered around the Research Center sign prior to leaving are: Richard Lane, left, forester in charge; Leon S. Minckler, silviculturist; David Herrick, Turkey forest management specialist in the Turkish Ministry of Agriculture; Turin Sahin, Ayaneik, Turkey, forest research station engineer.

The three visitors are on a nine months' assignment in the United States, studying and observing forestry practices with special emphasis on forest products and their utilization. (SIU News Photo)

Guests at 'Wake' of Wealthy Industrialist Receive Gifts from Personal Effects

DETROIT (AP)—Guests at a "wake" for a wealthy Detroit industrialist who died last November trudged home early today loaded with articles from his $500,000 estate.

Carl F. Clarke, a 79-year old bachelor who "loved beautiful women, good books, good liquor and good food" bequeathed 261 of his personal effects and a lavish party to 50 of his long-time friends.

With a ghost as host, the party was staged Wednesday night at Detroit's Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel. The bill, which included $200 worth of liquor and cigars and $1,200 worth of food, was footed by the late Clarke.

Although 50 friends were invited to the affair, only 45 were able to attend the formal dinner. Three of the beneficiaries have died, one was on vacation and one was recently widowed and felt it improper to attend "such a gay affair."

Nine charities were willed an equal share of the cash assets of his estate. Valuable paintings, antiques, books and other relics were left to art institutes, museums and universities in Michigan, Ohio, Arizona and New Mexico.

Clarke stipulated that his friends should draw from an old derby for his personal effects, valued at about $5,000.

John Coppin, a Detroit artist who had known Clarke for 35 years, drew the lowest number from the derby and made the first choice. He took an old flat-top mahogany desk.

Each of the other beneficiaries selected an article and the draw continued until all of the items had been claimed.

Charles L. Cassidy of Grosse Pointe, Mich., serving as toastmaster, said in a toast to the host, "Here's to Carl Clarke. He lived a life for living. He loved beautiful women, good books, good liquor and good food. His personal objects here have little intrinsic value, but with each goes a substantial share of the love he felt for you."

Slight Decline In Living Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Price cuts in food, clothing and some other items brought another slight decline in living costs in March, the government reported today.

A decline of two-tenths of 1 per cent between mid-February and mid-March put the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of consumer prices at 114.8 per cent of average 1947-49 prices. This was one-half of 1 per cent below the October record high of 115.4 per cent of the base period.

The March decline was the fourth since the October record and the second straight month to show a drop.

No major wage contracts with cost of living escalator clauses are due to the March index.

The March decline resulted mainly from a decrease of four-tenths of 1 per cent in both the food and clothing fields.

Senate Leaders Criticize Plane Ban by Nehru

By United Press

Senate Republican leaders today denounced Indian Prime Minister Nehru's refusal to let American planes fly across Indian soil with French troop reinforcements for Indochina.

GOP Floor Leader William F. Knowland called it "a very sad thing" and compared Nehru to a man who would cut a fire hose strung across his lawn to help put out a fire in a neighbor's home.

Chairman Homer Ferguson (R-Mich.) of the Senate Republican Policy Committee said Nehru's action "gave aid and comfort to the Communist world."

Other congressional news:

Housing: Chairman Homer E. Capehart of the Senate Banking Committee said the scandal-shaken Federal Housing Administration insured multi-million-dollar loans on some apartment house projects whose builders put up only a few thousand dollars of their own money. He made the statement as the committee continued its investigation of FHA loans.

Postal Rates: Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield appealed to the Senate Post Office Committee to approve the administration's bill to raise postal rates to avoid a possible postal deficit of 750 million dollars a year.

Farm: Senate GOP Leader Knowland said a series of amendments proposed by farm bloc senators would "kill" the administration's wool price support bill. He predicted the amendments will be defeated. Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.) also warned the farm bloc may wreck its own power if it insists on "loading" the wool bill with amendments designed to extend high price supports on other commodities.

The driver of the other car, Charles Young, 29, St. Louis, and three passengers in his machine also were seriously hurt. The others were Cornelius Gray, 30, St. Louis; Mrs. Virginia Evans, 30, East St. Louis; and Mrs. Virginia Pope, 20, East St. Louis.

Saline, Big Saline G. A. Houseparty at Dorrisville Church Friday, Saturday

Illinois State Girls' Auxiliary House party for Saline and Big Saline associations will be held April 23 and 24 at the Dorrisville Baptist church, Harrisburg.

Auxiliary is a Baptist organization for girls 9 to 16 years of age. There are more than three hundred G. A. organizations with approximately two thousand members in the Illinois Baptist State association.

Opening session will begin at 7:30 p. m. Friday evening with singings. Rev. E. H. Moore, state secretary of stewardship and missions, will show slides of Baptist work on the island of Jamaica. Missionary guest speaker will be Miss Gloria Fuentebella from the Philippine Islands.

Service awards will be presented to outstanding members of the auxiliaries. Special recognition of Queens, a playlet featuring "Fashion-Wise G. A.'s" and the organization of an Associational G. A. Council are some highlights of the program.

A fellowship period will close the Friday evening session, and the Saturday morning session will start at nine with a luncheon at noon.

Mrs. R. M. Frakes, State W. M. U. community missions chairman, Carbondale, is Houseparty director; Mrs. Lois Wesley Hammond and Mrs. Ava Lyons are co-chairmen.

Plan Atomic Bomb Attack Test at St. Louis, Chicago

CHICAGO (AP)—Illinois civil defense forces will cope with theoretical atomic bombs, assumed to have been dropped on Chicago and St. Louis, during a nationwide defense test June 14 and 15.

State CD Director Robert M. Woodward said additional mock incidents, such as might result from psychological and biological warfare, sabotage, and incendiary attack, will be assumed in six other target cities of Illinois.

The nationwide exercise assumes that 425 aircraft are attacking the United States, Canada and Alaska. Although 30 per cent of the aggressor force will be "destroyed," all of the craft carrying atomic missiles will reach their targets—42 major cities.

Three bomb attacks will be simulated in Chicago with ground zeroes at Lake and Canal streets just northwest of the Loop, at North Kilpatrick and Grace on the Northwest Side, and at Oakley and 68th streets on the South Side.

Another bomb drop at 11th and Pine streets in St. Louis will be assumed to have done widespread damage and caused many casualties in the East St. Louis area.

Woodward said the "bombs" simulated at Chicago will be eight times as powerful (160,000 tons TNT) as the one dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, which had the force of 20,000 tons of TNT. The "bomb" at St. Louis will be five times as powerful, or having the force of 100,000 tons of TNT.

The test, which will continue for 24 hours, will include the Air Force, Army, Navy, National Guard and other state, federal and local agencies as well as the civil defense organizations.

A new way of making paints, varnishes, and inks dry faster is to put into their linseed oil inexpensive amine chemicals along with manganese, iron, and other metals that have proved to speed the drying process.

New Oil Well Near Carlyle Producing 200 Barrels an Hour

CARLYLE, Ill. (AP)—A newly discovered oil well near here was producing an estimated 200 barrels of oil an hour today.

The well, the largest in the area since the 1930s, blew in Saturday with 130 barrels flowing in the first 35 minutes.

It is located on a farm owned by the Louis Stein estate about seven miles east of here.

Driller H. F. Robinson of Vandalia said the well has been capped to regulate flow and maintain gas pressure.

The Stein farm is near the established Boulder oil field discovered by the Texas Co. in 1942.

Bull Dog Track Team In Triangular Meet At Herrin Tonight

The Bull Dog track team tonight is engaged in a triangular meet at Herrin, with Pinckneyville the third team in the contest. Starting time is 6 p. m.

Saturday the Bull Dogs will be at West Frankfort for the annual West Frankfort relays. The preliminaries and the finals in the shot put and discus will be held starting at 2 p. m. and all other finals will be held in the evening starting at 7:30.

Bull Dogs Wallop Galatia, 24-2

The Harrisburg Bull Dog baseball team went to Galatia yesterday afternoon and won its fourth tilt of the year against one loss, beating the Bearcats 24 to 2.

It was all Bull Dogs from the start. In the first frame Harrisburg scored nine runs with Ken Dunn hitting two home runs in this one inning. Eleven tallies came in during the fifth inning to end the ball game in that stanza as the locals were more than 10 runs ahead. Under high school rules, if a team is 10 runs ahead at the end of the fifth, the game ends there.

Harrisburg made 17 hits off Orto and Imboden and Galatia made two off Bill Henshaw, who hurled the first three innings, and Everett Evans, who finished up. Henshaw, just a freshman, walked in both Galatia runs before he settled down.

Coach Lawrence Calufetti used Eddie Miller at first, Ronnie Bean and Fred Kinnaman behind the plate, Dunn and Ronnie Mitchell at second, Jim Cummins and Frank Santy at shortstop, Russ McDowell and Bob Evans at third, and Tom Golden, Wayman Hefner, Jim Alexander and David Rees in the outfield.

The game with McLeansboro tomorrow afternoon will be played there, instead of here, as was previously announced. Marion will come to Harrisburg for a contest Monday at 3:30 p. m.

HONEST—Billy Brown uses all of his strength to lift this 38-pound channel bass, caught off Hatteras, N. C., one of the season's first to be landed with rod and reel. (NEA)

Jones Wins TKO Over Gil Turner

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A stunning TKO triumph over Philadelphia's Gil Turner gave buffeted Bobby Jones a new boxing life after nine lean years, but his thoughts today were with his children and his wife, expecting their fifth child.

The 29-year-old Jones, a wide grin splitting his sad looking face, was aware that he had leaped to the top ranks of the middleweight division with his tenth round technical knockout over Turner in their rematch at the Arena Wednesday night.

"I guess I'll move into Turner's sixth place rank in the division," Jones said after proving that his previous split decision victory over the 23-year-old Turner six weeks ago was no fluke.

"But first I want to go back home to Oakland, Calif. For a well deserved rest of two or three weeks," he added.

When he swings back into action, Jones said he would like to meet Joey Giardello or Rocky Castellani, leading contenders of the 160 pound division. Promoter Herman Taylor already is trying to arrange a Giardello match for him at Connie Mack Stadium early next summer.

Jones, throwing off his underdog role for the second time against Turner, left no doubt in the minds of a nation-wide television audience that he is flurrying — punching Philadelphia's master. There was no question of his superiority as he belted Turner into a bleeding and tottering hub in 1-12 of the final round. The triumph was only his 37th in a 64 bout career that includes 19 defeats.

Stengel to Direct American League All-Star Team

CHICAGO (AP) — Casey Stengel, manager of the world champion New York Yankees, was named today to manage the American League All Star team this season for the fifth straight year.

Stengel's Yankees have won five straight American League pennant and world titles.

His appointment to direct the all star club was announced by league President Will Harridge. However, customarily the pilot of the pennant winning team of the previous year receives the job.

The All Star game, 21st between the two leagues, will be played July 13 in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium.

National League President Warren Giles earlier announced that Walt Alston, manager of the pennant winning Brooklyn Dodgers, would direct the senior circuit nine. The Dodger manager last year, Charlie Dressen, left the club this season in a contract dispute.

Records Almost Sure to Fall in Drake Relays

Wes Santee, Four Texas Sprinters To Lead Fast Field

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Fleet Wes Santee, his Kansas teammates and a foursome of Texas sprinters will lead a fast field of relay teams into the 45th Drake Relays Friday — with a flock of records almost sure to fall.

A huge field of 739 athletes from 72 colleges and universities will swarm over the infield of Drake Stadium for the two-day meet.

Santee, Kansas' great miler, won't run in the open mile. But he will spark Jayhawk teams in the two-mile, four-mile, sprint medley and distance medley relays.

The slim runner, who ripped through the mile in 4:03.1 at the Kansas Relays last weekend, makes the Jayhawks a favorite in all four relays.

Competition From Illinois

Kansas already has run under the Drake records in two relays—with a sizzling 9:51.4 in the distance medley and 17:15.6 in the four-mile relay. The Jayhawks are expected to crack Drake records and perhaps American collegiate records in several relays.

Four speedy Texans — Dean Smith, Jerry Prewitt, Al Friden and Charlie Thomas—are favorites in the 440-yard and 880-yard relays.

They've already beaten the world record in the 440 with :40.3 at Kansas last weekend. Coach Clyde Littlefield expects them to beat the 880 world mark of 1:24 before the season ends.

Southern Methodist has the best time so far this year in the mile relay—3:16 in winning at the West Texas Relays.

Kansas, Texas and Southern Methodist are expected to get their toughest competition from teams like Illinois, which won four relay events last year, Georgetown, Houston, and Michigan State.

See Fast 100-Yard Dash

Sprinter Willie Williams is the pride of the Illinois and his battle with three fast Texans probably will make the 100-yard dash the best in years.

Williams, who won here last year, has hit 9.4 seconds twice in the 100. But this time he faces Dean Smith, Charlie Thomas and Alvin Frieden of Texas, who finished one-two-three at both Texas and Kansas.

In Santee's absence, Russ Bonham of Whittier is the fastest clocked man in the open mile. He's run 4:10.5. Ray McConnell of Drake is the defending champ.

Rich Ferguson of Iowa is the man to beat in the two-mile. He's run it in 9:02.7—well under the Drake mark of 9:10.

Parry O'Brien, former Southern California star, will appear in a shotput exhibition. He said he's prepared to set a new world record. He's already done it several times—the last one 59 feet 4 inches.

Ron Mitchell of Illinois is the man to beat in the high jump. He's leaped 6 feet 9 1/4—an inch and a quarter over the Drake mark.

3,212 CONTESTANTS IN PENN RELAYS

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The fabulous Penn Relays, now 60 years young, opens as a two-day extravaganza on Franklin Field Friday and two records have been posted before anything more than a practice spike was put to the cinders.

They are the record list of 3,212 contestants from a record 511 colleges, prep, high and elementary schools. And they run the gamut from spindly-legged seventh graders to the tops in the track world competing in the 91 event program.

Major items in Friday's 35 events are the college distance medley, the heptagonal and metropolitan miles races in the quarter and half mile relays, and individual champions in the 400 meter hurdles, the two mile run and the discus.

"Look at this," one of them said. "The guy signs the card and you can't hardly tell whether it's 'Mays' or what. I can't read his writing. He writes just as lousy as I do."

On the field, a park policeman stood in front of the clubhouse entrance and watched Willie snag some flies which were being funged out by a coach standing in the infield, some 440 feet away.

"He makes the whole difference this year," the gendarme noted. "The guy can do anything. I remember him here the year we won the pennant. He was out of this world. And haven't you been seeing what the papers are saying about him?"

"Those guys," he said with a motion toward the distant second-tier press box, "follow the club every day. They know everything. And they like Mays nearly as good as they like Ruth. I think this guy will be another Ruth—almost."

With this, Willie got set to go after a fly. He took a quick step to his left, which was the wrong way, then whirled and raced to his right. His cap flew off, as if he were a kid back trying out for a high school team. He stabbed his

Mays Looks Human Until They Start to Play; Puts Rah-Rah Spirit in Baseball

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — Willie Mays, who must come very close to being all they say he is if the Giants are to do anything this year, started off the 1954 season at the Polo Grounds on a disconcerting note for those who take stock in his semi-superman billing.

To begin with, Willie walked into the Polo Grounds locker room on opening day and proceeded to hang his clothes in a very human manner. The jacket to his light brown double-breasted suit was bulging with envelopes and the pants were slapped on a hook. The shelf of locker No. 24, which is Willie's, was in a state of disarray. Why, he'd make just an ordinary housewife mad at him.

As Willie walked down the long flight of stairs which leads from the Giants' center field dressing room to the playing field, he paused, teeth gleaming in the bright sunlight, to autograph a couple of scoreboards for bleacher fans.

"Look at this," one of them said. "The guy signs the card and you can't hardly tell whether it's 'Mays' or what. I can't read his writing. He writes just as lousy as I do."

On the field, a park policeman stood in front of the clubhouse entrance and watched Willie snag some flies which were being funged out by a coach standing in the infield, some 440 feet away.

"He makes the whole difference this year," the gendarme noted. "The guy can do anything. I remember him here the year we won the pennant. He was out of this world. And haven't you been seeing what the papers are saying about him?"

"Those guys," he said with a motion toward the distant second-tier press box, "follow the club every day. They know everything. And they like Mays nearly as good as they like Ruth. I think this guy will be another Ruth—almost."

With this, Willie got set to go after a fly. He took a quick step to his left, which was the wrong way, then whirled and raced to his right. His cap flew off, as if he were a kid back trying out for a high school team. He stabbed his gloved hand across his body, but the ball went past him and banged harshly against the bleacher wall.

The noise startled the guard, who smiled. But Leo Durocher, something less than a bench superman last year, would do a lot more than smile if it happened in a game.

In the press box, as the game began, an old-time baseball man, visiting for the day, began to talk. "You see Irvin down there," he said, pointing to Monte Irvin, the husky New York outfielder. "That is one fine hitter. Big, strong wrists. He controls the bat, no wild swinging. That's why he hits anything. He cuts down on the percentage of missing with wrist action."

"But you take Mays. He hasn't developed wrist action yet. He just swings with everything he's got. They look for him to hit 300 this year—or at least they're praying he will. Well, I can't see him hitting much more than 270 or so. And he'll hit that until he develops the wrist business."

"That doesn't come overnight."

"And this spirit business," the guy went on. "Listen. These are professional ballplayers. That rah-rah spirit they say Willie gives 'em is just a lot of nonsense. These guys get paid for playing. They'll play their heads off if it helps their paychecks. This spirit is a lot of talk."

When the conversation was finished, and the rest of the day's doings injected into the thinking, you began to think that Willie Mays, the funny-running No. 24 on the big playing field, was very far from being the superman they say.

That is, until he won the ball game by hitting one of the longest home runs in Polo Grounds history, an awesome shot into the upper stands at the 425-foot mark.

The entire Giant bench was up on the steps doing a little war dance as Willie Mays ran around the bases.

Al Rosen, Larry Doby Spoil Bob Turley's No-Hit Bid, But Praise Orioles' Rookie

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

Al Rosen and Larry Doby, a couple of Cleveland "spoilers" who combined to break Bob Turley's heart Wednesday night, turned around today and paid the Baltimore fireballer the supreme compliment by calling him "the greatest young pitcher in the majors."

The 23-year-old Turley struck out 14 Cleveland batters — only four shy of Bob Feller's all-time record of 18 strikeouts — and held the Indians hitless until there was one out in the ninth.

Then Rosen singled and Doby followed with a 360-foot homer to give Bob Lemon a 2-1 victory over the Orioles and thoroughly crush 43,383 partisan Baltimore fans who were cheering Turley toward a no-hitter.

"The kid is the greatest young pitcher in the majors today," Rosen said, "and I wouldn't be surprised at any records he breaks."

Cardinals Win, 4-2

Doby, whose home run landed in the second row of the right field stands, agreed with Rosen.

"Turley is the best around today and he probably will be even better yet," he said.

Turley, who has less than 90 days experience in the majors and did most of his pitching last season with the Brooke General hospital team at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., was more disappointed over losing Wednesday night's game than he was over losing his no-hitter.

"Doby hit the same pitch in the ninth that I struck him out in the seventh," he said. "It was a high fast ball."

In other American league games, the Senators trampled the Athletics, 13-1 and the Yankees defeated the Red Sox, 5-1, while in the National league, the Dodgers beat the Phillies, 6-3, the Cardinals topped the Reds, 4-2, in a game which Cincinnati Manager Birdie Tebbets protested, the Pirates nipped the Giants, 5-4, and the Braves humbled the Cubs, 7-3.

Berra Paces Yankees

Jim Busby was the big man in the Washington victory over Philadelphia, smashing a triple, double and two singles to go with Bob Porterfield's three-hit pitching. Clyde Vollmer and Mickey Vernon each homered for Washington.

Home runs by Gil McDougald, Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra helped Eddie Lopat to his second victory of the campaign as the Yankees defeated southpaw Leo Kiely of Boston. Berra paced the Yankees' 11-hit offensive with a pair of singles in addition to his homer.

The White Sox and Tigers were idle.

Three Phillie errors in the first inning helped the Dodgers jump to a three-run lead at the expense of Steve Rickard and Brooklyn was victory headed. Billy Loes made his first start of the season and was the winner although he needed Jim Hughes' help in the ninth. Hughes struck out two pinch hitters to end the game.

Stanky Ejected from Game

Gerry Staley's eight-hit pitching, plus a three-run rally in the sixth, helped the Cards to their triumph over the Reds. But Tebbets protested the game because St. Louis Manager Eddie Stanky refused to remain inside the third base coaching lines after the umpire had ordered him to do so. Stanky was ejected from the game in the third inning.

Whitey Lockman's fumble of a pickoff throw in the eighth inning allowed Toby Atwell to score with the run that gave the Pirates their victory. It was a disastrous night all around for Lockman who lost a two-run homer in the fifth because teammate Monte Irvin had called time. Frank Thomas hit a three-run homer for the Pirates and Max Surkont gained the victory.

Eddie Mathews' three-run homer in the fifth, which carried Cub center-fielder Bob Talbot into the bullpen with it, powered Milwaukee to its triumph. Joe Adcock also hit a two-run homer for the Braves. Warren Spahn scattered eight hits and was the victor.

Washington, for his triple, double and two singles that helped beat Philadelphia, 13-1.

Liberace Denies He Is Eccentric; Pianist Claims He Leads Normal Life

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Liberace dropped his famous smile today to reveal he was "upset" by the "untruths and innuendos that try to make a sensational character out of me."

The pianist's TV program on 178 stations and his sold-out concerts around the country have rocketed him into a show business phenomenon, but he's also become a controversial figure. Today Liberace answered his critics with "the truth that I am not eccentric."

"One writer said I sprayed my hair with gray, that is not true," he said soberly. "I've been gray since I was 21."

"He also said I sewed when I was in the People read this and get the wrong idea. It's an innuendo that I am odd."

Other critics and night club comics' jibes, he continued, "refer to my family ties as something sinister and that I am guilty of."

Leads Normal, Quiet Life

"We are a closely knit family," he explained. "My religion taught me to love my mother and father. I go to church on Sunday. I work hard. I practice four hours a day. I don't booze it up or get into fights. I lead a normal quiet life."

Liberace gestured at the living room of his San Fernando Valley home that, despite what he says, I still call one of the most sensational in this land of the unexpected.

His huge swimming pool is shaped like a piano, complete with black-and-white keys. Candelabra, like the one on his TV show, glitters in the living room and even in the kitchen.

Liberace's flowing signature and a sketch of his piano are present everywhere—in the cement around the pool, on the side of his station wagon, on the drawer pulls of a desk and even on pot holders in the kitchen.

Ten shelves hold his collection of miniature pianos, many sent by fans. Wall paper and some furniture in the ornate home carry out the musical motif. The black-and-white bedspread of his king-size bed is inscribed with a huge gold "L."

Answers Critics

As he led a tour of his home, Liberace answered music critics who claim his technique is not the best and that he rewrites the classics.

"I cut some classics because I give listeners only what they will stand," he said. "If a number takes longer than six minutes, I lose the audience. I play popular music because if I played straight concerts I would lose three fourths of my following."

"I have gone to Artur Schnabel's concerts and seen people asleep. I don't profess to be Rubinstein, but, then, Rubinstein is not me, either. Nobody sleeps through my concerts."

Liberace added he doesn't mind Liberace gags or imitations by comedians "if they are clever and not offensive."

"Donald O'Connor does a good one. But a lot of mediocre entertainers just put a candle in a beer bottle and say they're me."

"But I'm not bitter," he smiled. "Everything is opening for me now. I will play in Madison Square Garden in New York next month, and only one other pianist, Paderewski, has done that."

Mothers' Day to Be Observed at U.I. April 30-May 2

URBANA-CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Mothers of University of Illinois students will be in the spotlight on the Urbana-Champaign campus on April 30-May 2 when campus Mothers' Day is again observed on the campus where the idea of such an observance originated in 1921.

This annual event is held a week prior to national Mothers' Day so that students may join their families at home for that observance.

A highlight of the weekend will be the Mothers' Association meeting at 10:30 a. m. (CDT) Saturday (May 1), in the Illinois Union, when new officers will be elected. County chairmen of the association will meet April 30 at 3:30 p. m. (CDT), followed by a banquet. The chairmen will be hostesses at a coffee hour preceding the association meeting Saturday. Mrs. Elmer Hill, Eldorado, is chairman for Saline county and Mrs. Leslie Jones, Ridgway, is chairman for Gallatin county.

Among the many activities planned for the weekend are a student presentation of "Girl Crazy"; water show; play, "Ring Around the Moon"; student songs; and luncheons and banquets.

At the annual coronation ceremonies on the terrace of the Illinois Union, Miss Joan Solomon of Greenville, Miss., will be crowned Mother's Day queen; the "Royal Mom," chosen from all the Illinois Mothers will be introduced; and the new officers of the Mothers' Association will be presented.

The site involved is now occupied by Camp Edwards and Otis Air Force Base.

Grasshoppers will Be on the Dinner Menu For 100th Anniversary of War on Insects

By KENNETH O. GILMORE
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Entomologists — the scientists who chase bugs — are making plans for a big but not buggy celebration this year. It will mark the 100th birthday of organized insect liquidation in America. For it was in 1854 that the U. S. government hired its first professional bug killer.

Some 4500 entomologists in federal and state agencies, schools and business firms all over the country are preparing for a real wing-ding. A century of extermination might well be the theme for their jubilation.

Highlight of the events will be a gigantic banquet in Washington in mid-June. Guests of honor are in for a rough night since the menu should be loaded with entomological delicacies. Grasshopper "au gratin" for example, is always a favorite dish.

This elite group deserves to make the occasion a memorable one. For years they have been obliterating and controlling dangerous insects with zest and imagination. Some old-timers might recall their famous slogan, "Swat That Fly," which swept the nation around 1900 when they waged a campaign to make people aware of the fly as a disease carrier.

Today the watchword is "Fight Your Insect Enemies." For the tiny creatures with their insatiable appetites still manage to eat away $4 billion worth of American food, clothes, lumber and many other things. So the battle goes on. Bug killing is now a multi-million dollar business. It all started back in 1854 when Asa Fitch was appointed as an entomologist in New York and by virtue alone of the poem he NEVER-ENDING WAR: Back in 1900, these Montana ranchers got together to mix bran, arsenic, molasses, lemon juice and water into a poison bait to battle grasshoppers. Methods have changed, but the grasshoppers are still around.

Townsend Glover became the first federal entomologist. Glover's name will long remain in the annals of entomological history by virtue alone of the poem he wrote while on a trip to investigate cotton insects:

"From red-bugs and bed-bugs,
from sand flies and land
flies,
Mosquitoes, gallinippers, and
fleas,
"From hog-ticks and dog ticks,
from hen-lice and men lice,
We pray Thee, good Lord,
give us ease."

Entomologists take credit for several unique American traditions. When it was learned a mosquito bite could mean yellow fever they urged precautionary measures.

As a result the early American mosquito net came into vogue, fly paper was accepted in the most genteel parlors and iron beds under netting tents flooded the markets. These beds made an unhappy abode for any insect family, especially when the legs were set in saucers of kerosene to discourage ambitious bed bugs, as was the custom.

Today 10,000 species of destructive insects reside in the U. S. For every one entomologists have scraped the barrel for names, such as pear leaf blister mite, horse-radish flea beetle, banana root borer, strawberry leaf roller and cattle tail louse.

Many of these varieties free-loaded their way into the country with early American settlers, according to the Agriculture Research Service. Before the Plant Quarantine Act of 1912 there were no immigration restrictions against insects from abroad.

Foreign pests still try to hitchhike on passenger and cargo ships and airplanes while inspectors try to keep them out. It's a never-ending war and nobody can predict whether man or the insects will ultimately win.

AFL Telegraphers Approve Strike by Western Union Workers
WASHINGTON — The AFL Commercial Telegraphers Union today called a nationwide strike vote to be held between now and May 31 among 35,000 Western Union employees.

The strike vote was scheduled by the national bargaining committee of the Western Union division of the CTU after it broke off negotiations with the company Tuesday. The union and the company, however, have agreed to resume negotiations here May 24.

Union employees except those in the New York metropolitan area.
The union's negotiating committee said the company had refused to offer any across-the-board wage increase and had made proposals "that would actually result in wage cuts."

Contents of Egyptian Queen's Tomb Displayed

CAIRO — Contents of the tomb of Queen Takhoti, who died some 2,500 years ago, recently were placed on public exhibit at the Cairo Museum.

Well preserved, the exhibits are varied and numerous. The most valuable of them is a massive gold mask, which reveals that the queen was a woman of unusual beauty. Remains of her burial garments show that they were studded with golden stars, rosettes and superbly executed lotus flowers. Most of the material has long since disintegrated, but the pieces which survived are made of a close mesh of linen texture.

Delicately fashioned gold finger and toe stalls, a common feature in royal burials of that period also were found. The collection also includes 35 golden vials dedicated to the god Bes, (the cat), 29 similar vials to the god Hathor (cow's head), and an unusually large heart scarab carrying an inscription urging that the lady's heart should not weigh too much in the scales of justice in the next world.

An Egyptian farmer, Abdel Aziz Rehman, unearthed Queen Takhoti's tomb while ploughing in 1951.

Timer Used to End Party-Line Gossiping
CLIMAX, Mich. — (U) — A gadget called a "conversation timer" has been installed by operators of the Climax-Telephone Co. in an effort to eliminate service tieup complaints caused by party-line gossipers.
The operators, Mr. and Mrs. John Colver, said the timer sounds a buzzer seven minutes after a conversation starts on local calls. Sixty seconds later the connection is broken.

You Never Have But One Social Security Number

Do you know that there's a number that is yours alone and that no other person has one just like it?

This number never changes; it is yours as long as you live.

It is your key to future monthly benefit payments for you and your family.

"This is the number on your little blue and white social security card," says E. Bishop Hill, manager of the Harrisburg district social security office. "The Social Security Administration uses this number to keep a record of all of your earnings that count toward old-age and survivors insurance."

This record is used to figure the amount of the social security payments to you and to your family in your old age, and to your family in case of your death at any age. The amount of the payments depends on the amount of earnings listed under your social security number by the Social Security Administration.

This number, like your army serial number or the number on an insurance policy, identifies something that is yours. Mr. Hill points out that a person's name alone is not enough to enable the Social Security Administration to keep a record of his earnings. "Many different people have names that are similar, or exactly the same," he declares. "However, no two people have the same social security number."

Mr. Hill says that every worker should realize the importance of his social security card and of the number it shows. "He should take care of this card as he does other important documents; if he loses it, he should ask his nearest social security office for a duplicate card. The renewed card will bear the same number the old one had. "Bear in mind, too," he said, "a card issued to you in Puerto Rico, Alaska, Hawaii, or the Virgin Islands is valid in the United States proper. You do not have to apply for a new card if you migrate from any of these places to work in continental U. S. A."

"There are three things to remember," Mr. Hill added. "One, be sure to get a social security card; two, show your card to your employer when you go on a new job and make sure that he copies your name and your social security number just as they appear on your card; three, ask for a record of your account from the Social Security Administration at least once every three years. A statement of this account can be obtained free."
